

Structured scorecards launch in September.

Buyers are heads of talent at companies between fifty and five hundred people.

Interview structure lives in spreadsheets nobody opens during the interview.

The post should argue that an unstructured loop is a decision-rights problem.